Each year, Green County Leader participants work on a community project, applying hundreds of volunteer hours and invaluable experience to address challenges facing Green County communities. The projects completed during the 2013-2014 program year were designed to meet needs identified through the community health improvement planning process.

Civility Project: Promoting Civility in Green County

Brian Slattery, Dan Schenkat, David Sheedy, Kristen Jensen, Kristina Mowers, Jeff Newcomer

Partnering with Shakespeare on the Edge, this group developed an arts-based curriculum to engage students in learning about components of civility.

Drug Drop Boxes

Brian Schaible, Deb Delforge, Mary Mezera, Jessi Beck, Todd Noggle, Roseann Meixelsperger, Richard Thoman, Belinda Pratt, and Michael Lippold

This group researched, fundraised, and established a drug drop box at the Green County Sheriff's department. By engaging stakeholders, they were able to market this box as a safe way for prescription drugs to be deposited. The information they gathered was able to be used by each police department in Green County to set up a drug drop box at the police stations in Green County.

Kiwanis Disc Golf Family Fun Day

Ben Voss, Amanda Montgomery, Katie Studer, Josh Dye, Phil Rath

In an effort to encourage increased physical activity, this group partnered with the Monroe Kiwanis to increase awareness of the new disc golf course in Monroe. They created an event that enabled people to learn how to play disc golf, and shared the event materials with the Kiwanis group so the event could be replicated.
